Voyager Announces (IMPROVED) 360 Tour Do It Yourself Kits

(1 Aug 2007, Santa Fe, NM) Today Voyager announced their plans to exhibit at Inman Connect San Francisco August 1-3, 2007.

“We had a great time at Inman Connect 2006 and we wanted to attend again this year,” says Barry Black VP of Sales at Voyager. “This year, we will be sharing our exhibit space with Terry Pullan, CEO of Pullan.com. Their firm provides REALTORS with a great starter website package bundled with good drip marketing tools.”

Voyager will be demonstrating a HD (High Definition) virtual tour kit system aimed at professional photographers and Luxury Brokers this year. These kits will use a Nikon D Series SLR camera, a Sigma 8mm fish eye lens and will come bundled with RealViz Stitcher Unlimited. Complete kits with hosting, access to Realtor.com for posting tours and step by step training start around $4,200. Entry level kits with just the rotator, Sigma lens and software start at $1,800.

As a side benefit, all 360 tours get posted to Kayyah.com for FREE. Kayyah.com is the first Open MLS system of it's kind and it generates more than 400,000 hits every month now. REALTORS needing eyeballs on their listings with virtual tours or videos, have come to appreciate what Kayyah.com is doing for helping them sell homes quickly.

“I will not be able to attend the Inman event this year,” added Bart Wilson, Chief Marketing Officer at Voyager. “The demand for our 360, Do It Yourself Virtual Tour kits is out pacing what we can provide, which is why we sent Barry to attend the Inman Connect event.”
